The Great Sheep Countries.
The greatest industry of Australia is sheep raising, mainly for the sake of the wool, but also in part, of course, for the meat. Australia now ranks second among the great sheep raising countries, Argentina being first with 92,000,000 sheep, Australia second with 72,000,000 and Russia third with 70,000,000. Only a few years ago Australia was first, possessing no less than 106,260,000 head of sheep. That was in 1891. Prolonged droughts were the cause of the destruction of many millions of Australian sheep, but since 1902 there has been an annual gain. Yet these sheep were not indigenous to Australia. They were first introduced in 1797, being of the Spanish merino species.

"Bonds" For Matrimony.
How manners and customs change in a generation! In talking with Congressman Green the other day he recalled the fact that his mother and father were married in Massachusetts, and his father was required to give a bond of $125 before the ceremony could be performed. If this requirement were enforced at the present time and every young man who desired to enter the blessed state of matrimony had to prove that he was possessed of $125 spare cash it is to be feared that many of our young people would have little left to purchase a housekeeping equipment. In those old days they regarded marriage as something more than a pastime and entered upon it as a real and serious responsibility.—National Magazine.

Possible Fate of This Old World.
Lord Kelvin, the well known British scientist, foresees that as the world grows older earthquakes will grow bigger until it is to be supposed that Jamaica and Sumatra, latest of earthquake victims, will sink into the sea. In the distant time when the central fires of the earth are burning themselves out Lord Kelvin believes that earthquakes will occur only at intervals of a few millions of years. But even when the earth has been cooled down to a uniform temperature throughout and all further disruption by shrinking has ceased a new terror looms on the Kelvin horizon—a shattering and remelting of the earth by collision with some other large body.

Why Rubber Tires Get Hot.
When an automobile is running at high speed the rubber tires are rapidly warmed, and the heat sometimes becomes very great, with resultant injury to the rubber. The cause of this accumulation of heat in the tire is ascribed to the kneading of the rubber, which generates heat faster than it can be radiated away. For this reason manufacturers have found it to be an advantage to have metal parts in the tread, such as the ends of rivets, in contact with the tire, because the metal, being a good radiator, helps to carry off the heat to the outer air.—Youth's Companion.
